

Education Reform's Missed Opportunity: Young People in California's Court Schools

At a time when California has earmarked millions to direct more resources to underserved youth in K-12 schools, education reform has failed to address the needs of a captive audience -- kids in the juvenile justice system, who attend what are known as "court schools." A new study by Youth Law Center finds that these schools are failing young people in juvenile hall, who are hungry to learn and find little support.

WHEN: Tuesday, July 12
11:00 am - 1:00 pm

WHERE: World Affairs Council
312 Sutter Street #200
San Francisco, CA 94108

WHO:

- Senator Loni Hancock (D-Oakland)
- Jennifer Rodriguez, Executive Director of Youth Law Center
- Maria Ramiu, Managing Director of Youth Law Center
- Louis Freedberg, Executive Director of EdSource
- David Muhammad, Vice President of Impact Justice
- And former juvenile justice-involved youth

WHAT: A media and community forum including a speaker panel, the results of a survey of currently detained juvenile justice youth, and youth-produced films about formerly detained youth

RSVP: Anna Challet - achallet@newamericamedia.org